Negotiating and drafting patent license agreements have always been potential minefields. The Supreme Court's recent decision in KSR and upcoming decision in Bilski open the possibility for even further complications, especially with respect to validity challenges of the licensed patent. The panel of IP practitioners will provide practical tips on how to negotiate and draft patent license agreements from both a licensor's and a licensee's perspective in view of future patent validity challenges. Software and business method patents and the pending Bilski decision will be specifically highlighted. Attendee insight and participation will be welcomed and discussed.
