Businesses operating in the state of Missouri have historically struggled to comply with the Federal immigration regulations. Now Missouri has passed its own immigration law which has far reaching implications for the construction industry. From hiring practices to contracts, employers must now be aware of not only the federal requirements, but state immigration law as well. This seminar will provide an overview of the new Missouri immigration law (House Bill 1549). Topics will include hiring requirements and liabilities, state contracts, subcontractor issues, OSHA, 1099s, E-verify, enforcement mechanisms and penalties, and how to protect the company. Both private and public sector employers will benefit from this timely review of Missouri's new immigration law, which is among the most aggressive in the nation.
