An Inside Look at 2006's Most Notable Copyright and Trademark Cases
 2006 was a busy year for intellectual property, and not just for Google. Never have more courts been asked to eyeball source code under the "ordinary observer" test and decide that fine line between generic and descriptive. We will take a look at the most notable decisions of 2006 in the copyright, trademark, trade secret, unfair competition and data privacy arenas. We will focus on cases from the Eighth and Tenth Circuits and discuss how they affect our practice.
