Attend this seminar to learn how to protect your client's interests as the green development movement continues to expand. Cities, developers, landlords, tenants, architects and contractors are all trying to put their arms around the challenges and opportunities of green development. Which ever entity you represent, it will be necessary to re-evaluate various "standard" lease provisions and tailor leases to address the new issues raised by green development.

After attending this seminar, you will be able to:

- better understand what is driving green development and some basics of the LEED® certification program;
- identify issues that need to be addressed in a green lease; and
- draft green provisions that address the needs of both landlords and tenants
